We should talk less and pray more because prayer gives life when things are dying. Jesus did not die on the cross for people to go to church for one hour a week. We need to get saved from that kind of thinking. Unfortunately, the younger generations may never have seen the powerful move of the Holy Spirit.

Talk Less! Pray More! | Dr. Stephen Cutchins

When it comes to words of potential criticism concerning our husbands, Mrs. Happy has adopted a simple rule that helps keep her on the straight path: Pray more than you speak. If you think you should discuss a sensitive matter with your husband that could be received as criticism or reproof, spend more time praying about it than you do talking.

Talk Less And Pray More - MannaEXPRESSMannaEXPRESS

In and of itself, the mantra, "Talk Less Pray More," would be a sufficient word of encouragement. However, Miller knows that our humanistic, self-sufficient flesh must surrender to the Lord of all things. And such flesh dies hard, especially if we are accustomed to saying "prayers" to prop up the expectations of our religiosity.

Talk less, pray more - Pathway

Sadly, most of us prefer to talk more and pray less. We find it more interesting to listen to the words spoken about the Pope than to the words of the Pope himself. Lacking wisdom, we forget that when we cut corners in our prayer lives we cut off our oxygen supply. Jesus modeled prayer. It was the source of all his wisdom and his power.
